Individual Programs

Individual Performance Programs give you the freedom to design your own organic, bespoke and individualized program. You can build your own unique road map to change based around your needs and desired financial commitment. You can set your chosen amount of hours coaching by the session, per month or annum with any member, or all of the team and the time can be used in a multitude of ways giving experiences that utilise the integrated team of holistic practitioners.

Typical experiences will expose the golfer to a greater way of quantifying their game in a more scientific, evidence based manner. The golfer can choose numerous methods of improvement from physiological/biomechanical training, psychological training, putting and green reading, goal setting, practice plans and regimes, regular skype calls, play with the professional, 3D motion analysis/biofeedback training, Trackman/video swing analysis, equipment assessments, skills testing/pressure practice, statistical analysis, physical training, tournament preparation and support. These programs give the golfer the complete biological, tactical and psychological development opportunity .
